

ABSTRACT

A mobile device that performs at least one mobile computing application and at least one phone application. This mobile device includes a user-controllable pivoting input switch. This switch has a number of operational modes. Several of these operational modes direct the operation of the mobile computing application. In additional, several operational modes direct the operation of the phone application.

09/26/2014 10:44:59 AM